

Chipping Sparrow

The Chipping Sparrow is one of the most common and widespread native sparrows in America. The Chipping Sparrow is readily found on neighborhood lawns and woodland edges, and feeds on seeds and insects in the open. While the Chipping Sparrow mainly forages on the ground, males often sing their familiar rapid chips from the tops of tall pines.